LOOK's Spotlight of Fashion previews new campus clothes for fall

COZY QUILTING and splashy prints are an unbeatable combination for leisure-hour lounging—that's the verdict of "Dusty" Anderson of Toledo University. This white, quilted Deb-Robe with realistic red apples—much newer than flowers—in all-over design, is piped and lined in matching red, $5.95. In mercerized Pacific Mills cotton, it's Sanforized-shrunk, and there's an accompanying Factag with directions for laundering. The scuffs — Dusty prefers them to mules — are Daniel Green's newest, in soft Pola Suede, $2.50. Apple-red make-up and nail polish are by Helena Rubinstein.

Ruth "Dusty" Anderson is a senior at the University of Toledo. Peggy Elder is a junior at Smith. Jean Compo is a recent graduate of Stephens, in Missouri.

All three like LOOK's Fashion Spotlights for the college year '41-'42, although one is a coed, one an undergraduate of an Eastern girls' college, one just out of a college in the Midwest—which goes to show that all college girls have pretty much the same idea about clothes.

They all go overboard for the "red apple" housecoat above — they think its cheerful print improves late-study morale; they appreciate its warmth in dormitory corridors, which are notoriously drafty.

Peggy Elder likes the warmth and movie-star-bulky look of the Ancuna topcoat (right) —recommends it for campus wear, expects it will be a stand-by at football games.

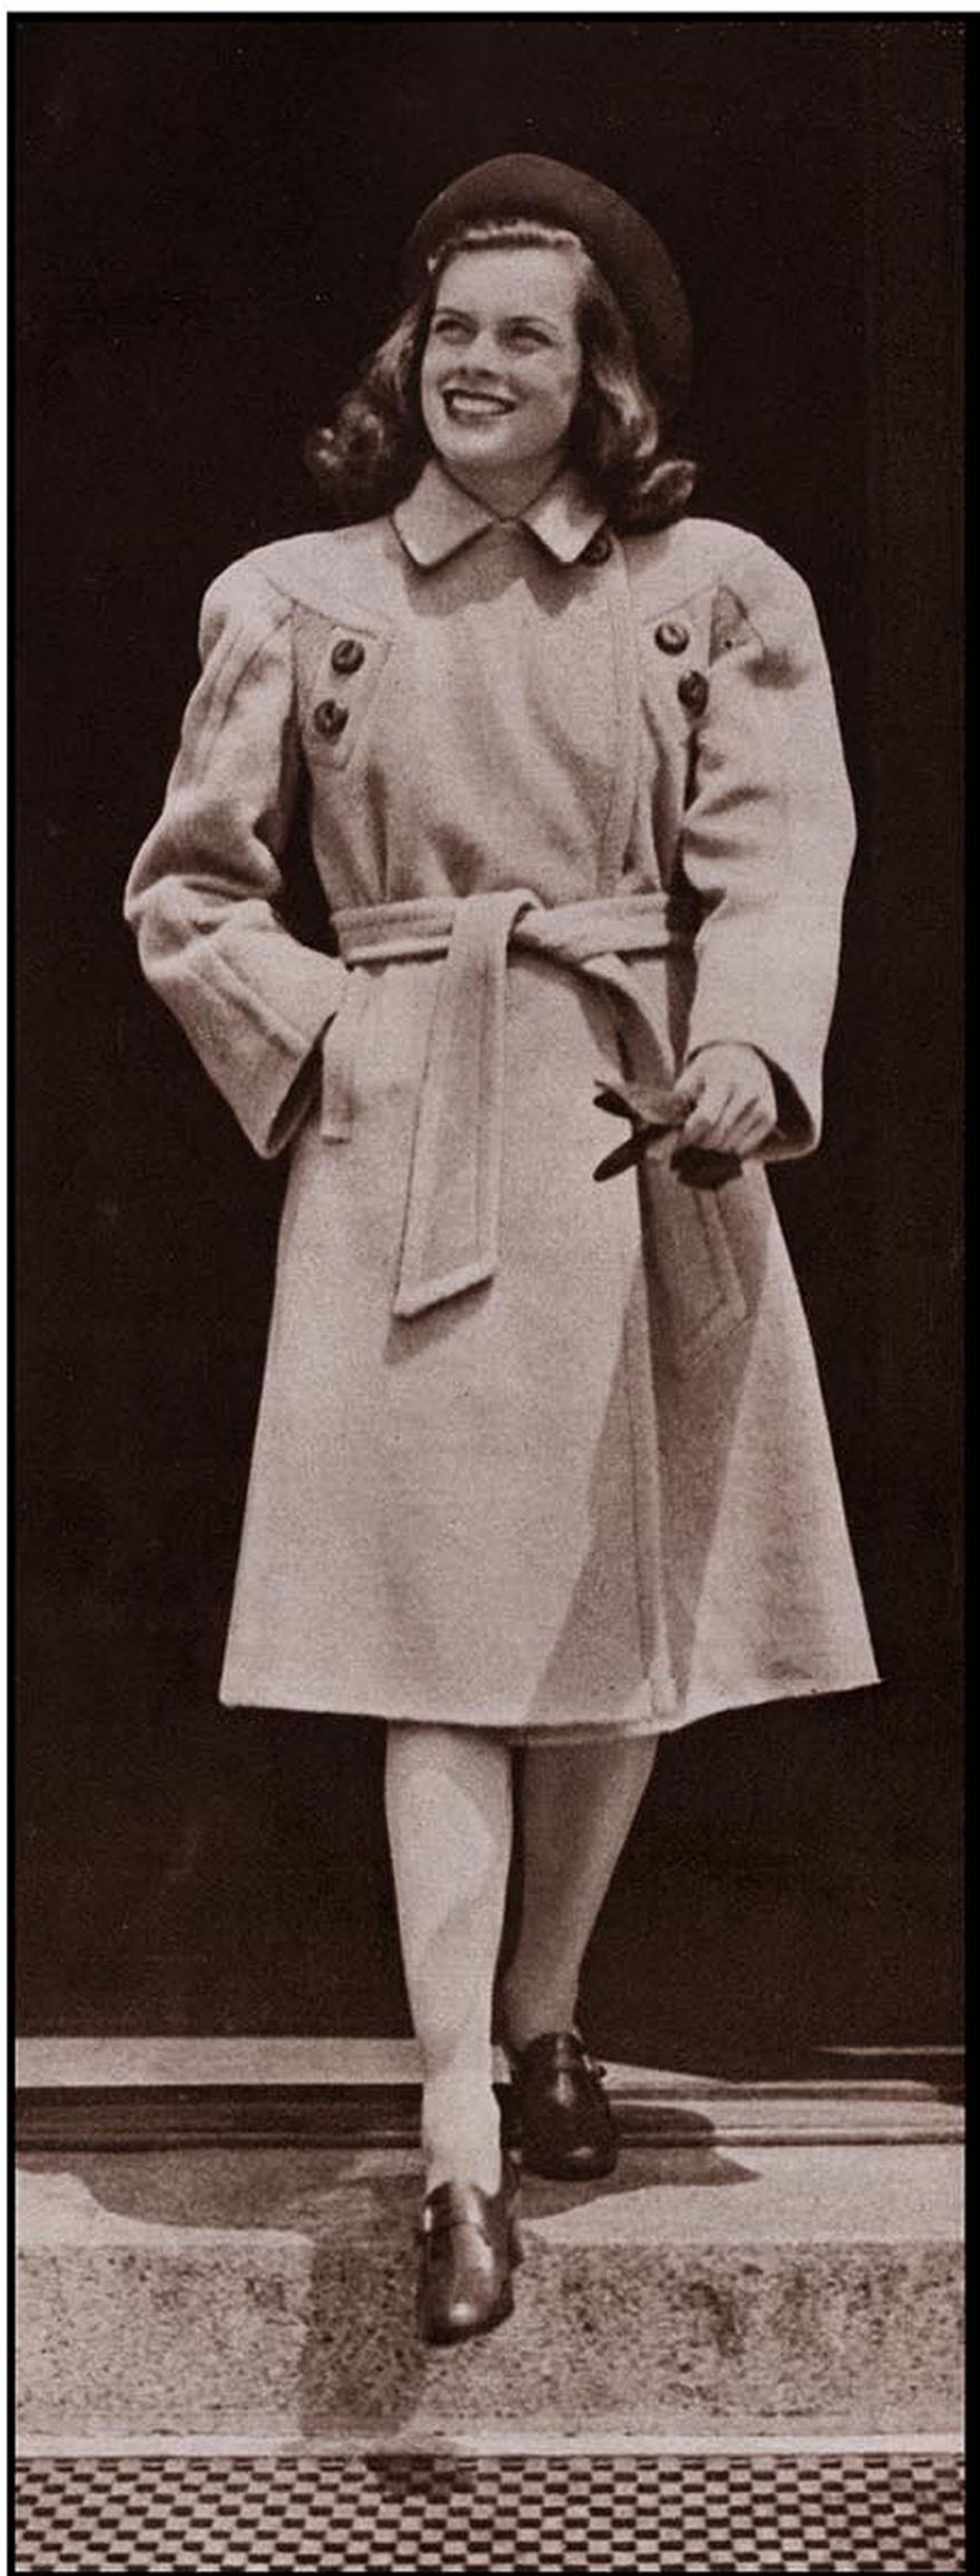

Jean Compo loved modeling the date dress (far right)—says it will be just the thing for don't-dress juke-box dances with the boys from Missouri U. and points out that, being of thin wool, it will team up comfortably with her short fur jacket.

All appreciate the kind-to-budgets prices of all the clothes picked.

A BIT THICK and very warm is Peggy Elder's prescription for a coat to weather the chill winter at Smith College. This belted beauty by Vogue Girl qualifies because of its new fleecelike fabric — Continental's Ancuna in natural, brown, R.A.F. or Bugle Blue, Earl-Glo rayon-lined, $29.95. Her Dobbs tricorne Classmate is $7.95. Her tan calf Walk-Overs are buckled like jodhpurs, $8.95.

A "SOFT" DATE DRESS appeals to Jean Compo of Stephens. This gray-blue Walther wool by International Jr. has 1942 "natural" shoulders, $17.95. In matching faille are Betmar's Dutch cap, $3.95, and Ritter & Ritter's Blackout Bag which contains a flashlight, $3. The Aris gloves have a change purse on one wrist, $1.50; the Enna Jettick shoes are thong-laced, $6.
