

CAN YOU IDENTIFY AN AMERICAN COMMUNIST?

The President has asked all Americans to keep their eyes open for spies and subversives and to report them to the FBI. Who would you start looking for? A bearded man, toting a bomb, speaking broken English, waving a Daily Worker, and spouting about filthy capitalists?

If you did, you'd be in for a great surprise. The spy or subversive may live in a medium-sized city — say of 225,000—and love to garden. He is active in church affairs. He is the son of an Episcopalian clergyman (Julian Wadleigh, lower left). He strolls at dusk with his wife, observing rare birds (Alger Hiss, u.r.). He has been divorced a few times (Freddy Vanderbilt Field, u.l.) or he was devoted to his mother and never married (Harry Gold).

As a youngster she was a Girl Scout (Judith Coplon, l.r.). He was an Assistant Scoutmaster (Hiss). At college he was an honor student and a campus leader (Hiss); at college he was a social misfit (Gold).

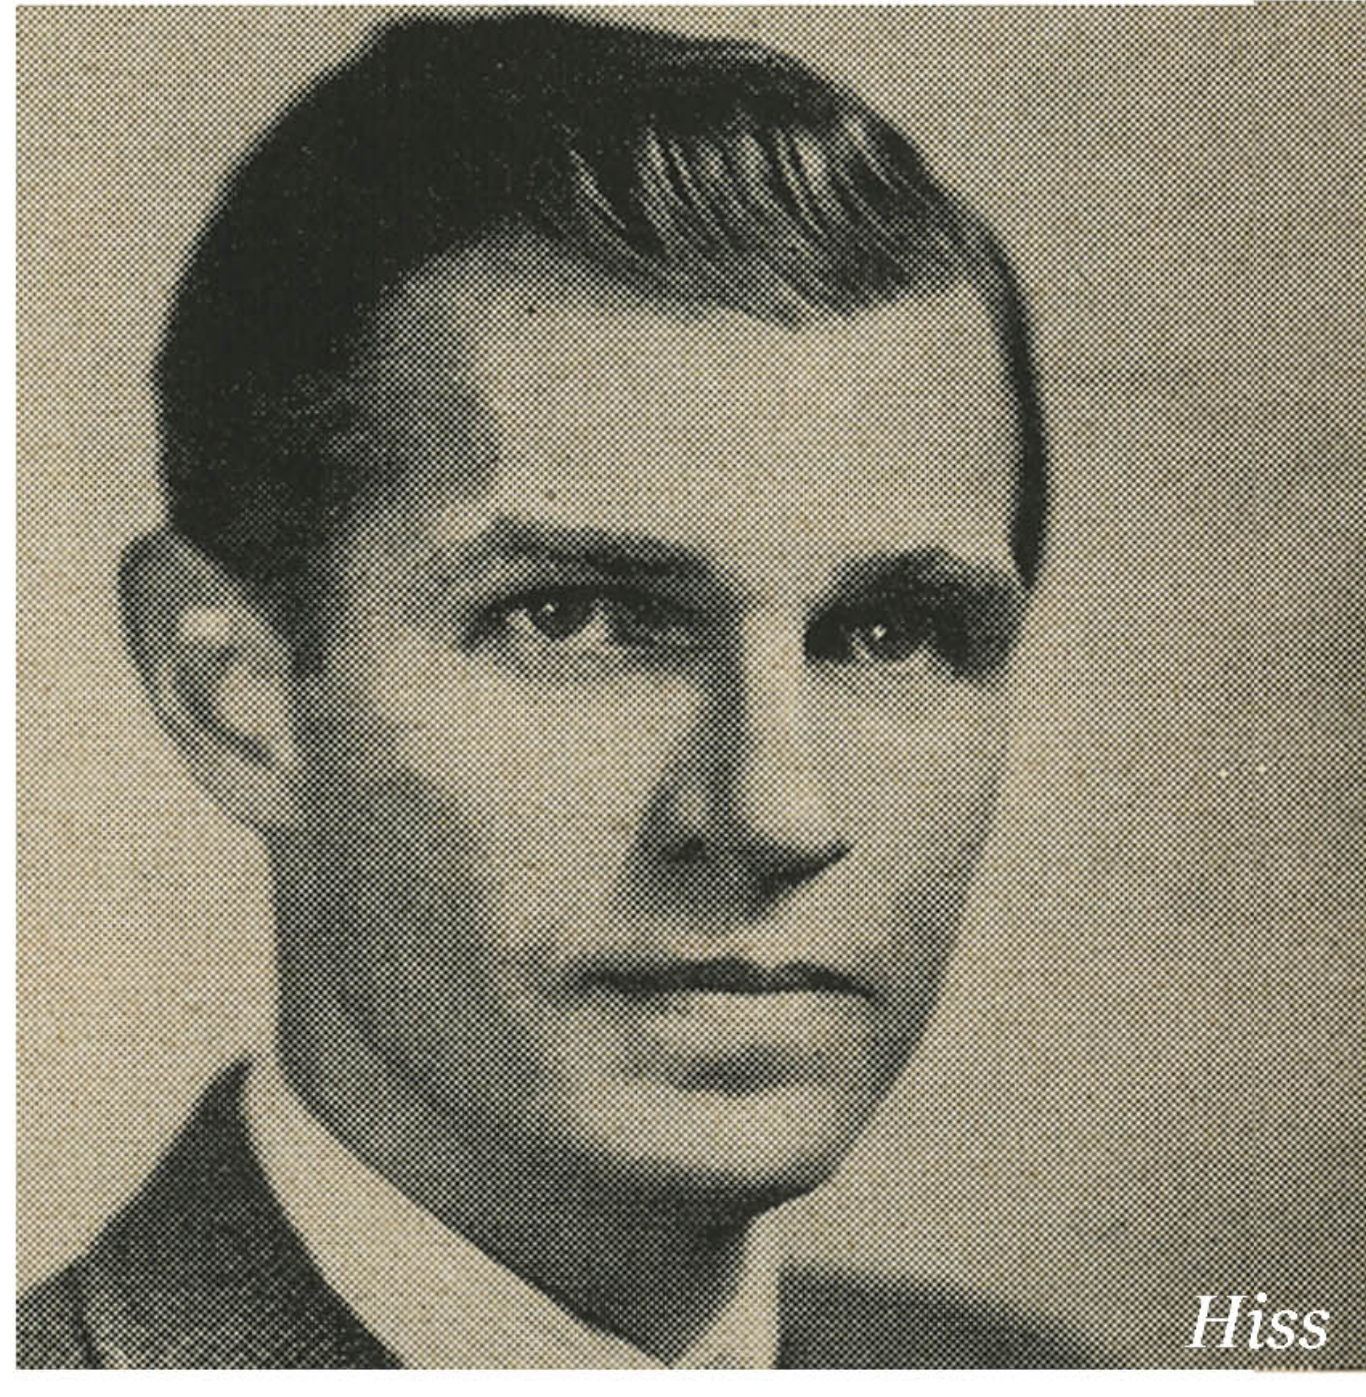

He went to exclusive Hotchkiss Preparatory and then to Harvard where he was a top figure in the gay, social—not the intellectual—crowd

Can You Spot a Red?

(Field). Or he went to college at night and worked by day (Gold).

He lives in a tenement on N. Y.'s lower East Side or in a 4-story house with private elevator (Field) or in a nice, middle-class section of Brooklyn (Judy Coplon).

He is middle-sized, dark, slightly pudgy (Gold); he is tall, thin and sandy-haired (Hiss). He can be an ardent do-gooder, given to speaking his mind freely in public (Wadleigh) or a reticent, hard-working young man with an avid interest in that most American of all sports—baseball (Gold).

In short, he or she can be your kind—every-day, next-door American neighbors.

FBI director Hoover has asked all Americans to report their suspicions. (Your phone book gives the number of the nearest FBI agent.) But Hoover also asks Americans not to engage in witch hunts. "We are not interested in what a person thinks, but in what he does . . . Avoid reporting malicious gossip." This is a free country which, unlike Russia, glories in the right of its citizens to hold at all times their own, varied, unorthodox opinions.

People Today

August, 1950

p. 2

OldMagazineArticles.com