

NASTY JANE ANDERSON

by ALBERT Q. MAISEL

THE NAZIS' other female American traitor is Jane Anderson, an Atlanta girl who dishes out the strongest pro-Nazi propaganda in a honeychile accent. To the British she is known as Lady Haw-Haw. At the beginning of the Spanish Civil War, the Loyalists caught her in a bit of amateurish fifth-columning. She was arrested and held in jail for six weeks, and although she had often boasted of how she despised America, she fell back upon her American citizenship to secure her release.

Then she returned to the United States and stumped this country trying to win support for Franco. Since May, 1941, she has worked for Hitler, but her line of patter is still the same old story of how she is helping the Nazis "preserve Christianity for the consecration and the renaissance of a new world."

Coronet JUNE, 1943: p.158

(This is a segment of a longer article titled "Six for the Hangman" by Albert Q. Maisel)

OldMagazineArticles.com